Abstract

"Budora" is a comprehensive and user-friendly website with its primary focus on indoor plants. The website offers a catalog of indoor plants. .It acts as a centralized hub, connecting users with nearby stores that have their desired indoor plants. In addition to the plant catalog, the website provides valuable information in the form of detailed care instructions for each plant. These instructions cover every aspect of plant care, from watering and light requirements to temperature preferences and special care considerations specific to each plant species.

The user experience is further enhanced through the incorporation of essential store details, such as plant availability, pricing information, customer reviews, and ratings. By equipping users with this information, "Budora" empowers users to make informed decisions and purchase plants from reputable and trusted local stores.

The project aims to empower plant enthusiasts by providing them with valuable information and convenient access to a variety of indoor plants from trusted local stores.
